

How does CSA work?

Share members receive a share of fresh, locally grown vegetables weekly during the growing season, along with a real connection to their food and farmer. The program season averages 18-21 weeks from mid-May to late October.

To register for the CSA, please send a non-refundable deposit of $100 by cash or cheque along with your registration form (see back of brochure). Registration and deposits received before October 31st will receive an Early Bird Discount. The remainder of the balance or post dated cheques are due on the first pick up day. Please make cheques payable to “Jessica Foote”.

Types of Shares

- Half share: For a young family or a couple.
- Full share: For larger families and vegans or vegetarians.
- Working share: Members can receive a $25 discount in exchange for 8 hours of work.

Who are we?

Lunar Rhythm Gardens is your local Community Supported and Community Shared Agriculture (CSA) Farm. We proudly serve Durham Region and the Kawarthas including Port Perry, Bowmanville, and Lakefield.

What is Community Shared Agriculture ?

Community Shared Agriculture (CSA) is a concept in which the consumers get a variety of high quality, fresh vegetables at an affordable price, while supporting small scale, environmentally sustainable, and community oriented food production.

CSA is a way to experience directly how food is grown. CSA is also a way for people to re-establish a social community around food – a mutually beneficial partnership of farmers and members.

CSA is also a way to keep local money in the local community and reduce your environmental footprint.

The CSA model is a shared risk model. The farmer works hard to ensure a bountiful harvest and plants a large variety of vegetables. However sometimes weather, disease, or pests will affect the harvest. Members agree to share this risk with the farmer. This provides security to the farmer and the consumer.
